NEW VOLUME.

The DAILY JOURNAL enters upon its fourth volume to-day. We are pleased to inform its many warm friends, and its hundreds of readers, that its circulation and general prosperity were never greater than now. The majority of its readers have been such from the issue of its first number. This long and pleasant intercourse is a source of sincere satisfaction to the publisher, as he trusts it is to his patrons. We shall strive to present them in the future, as in the past, with a reliable family newspaper, and trust its readers may increase with the revolving years.

The Galveston Flood.

The city of Galveston is situated on an island a short distance from the mainland of Texas. This island is of a sandy formation and so low that when a person stands in a boat at one side he can look up the streets and see the water on the other side three miles away. The sandy ground prevents levees from being built, hence they are wholly at the mercy of the storms. The city is now inundated, many people are lost and the destruction to property is immense. These overwhelming storms happen about once in ten years. From the Galveston News of Sept. 16th, we find the following list of storms that have happened there:

In 1818, during the time of Lafitte, a storm occurred that scattered the fleet of the Barratarian buccaneer. Four of the vessels were driven ashore at Virginia Point, and the greater portion of their crews were drowned. This, the first storm of which there is any record, came from the eastward, as they all do, and raged with great violence.

The next storm visited the island on the 1st of October, 1837. The wind blew from the east seven days, filling the harbor with water and submerging the island. The brig Elba was driven ashore and afterwards used as a prison house. At this time there were only a half a dozen houses on the island, and most of them were blown down. One life was lost by drowning.

In October, 1842, the island was visited by a cyclone which came from the east. This caused considerable damage to the shipping in the harbor, and when the water subsided a large quantity of rubbish was left piled on the Strand and streets contiguous thereto. The old wooden Episcopal church was blown down and other damage to buildings sustained. This was the wildest cyclone that visited the island.

The great September cyclone of 1854 did not do much damage to Galveston. The water reached the floors of several Strand stores, damaging goods to some extent. It was during this storm that the town of Matagorda was destroyed and a number of people on the lower coast drowned. The little steamer "Nick Hill" was lost off Dollar Point, in Galveston Bay.

The next was the most severe and disastrous storm that ever swept over Galveston. A strong easterly gale set in on October 2, 1867, reaching the highest velocity at noon on the 2d. The first floors of many Strand stores were flooded and the shipping suffered greatly. All the wharves except the "Central" were nearly demolished, and a bark, three barks and eleven schooners went ashore in the harbor. At 4 p. m. on the 4th the wind shifted from east northeast to northwest and the weather once more settled down.

The sixth storm occurred on the 9th of June, 1871. An easterly gale that had been blowing for several days reached on the evening of the 9th a velocity of forty miles an hour by nine o'clock at night and by morning had completely subsided. In the city considerable damage was sustained. Several small vessels were wrecked, and the bark Virginia Darn foundered at her anchors in the offing. Four vessels of large burden were driven from their anchors and compelled to put to sea. Among the buildings blown down was St. Patrick's Church.

On the night of October 1, 1871, a severe wind visited Galveston, and continued till the 3d. The wharves were slightly damaged and several buildings injured. The steamer Twelfth Era was lost off Pelican Island. The wharves at the upper bay, and all her crew and officers were drowned with the exception of a Swede named Anderson.

The new and costly bridge that crosses the Mississippi at St. Louis is now in the hands of a receiver. Every railway passenger has to pay twenty-five cents for crossing it.

There are 2,700 varieties of apples; known by 1,800 names; 2,200 of pears; 150 of plums; 300 of our native grapes; 50 of currants; 80 of raspberries; and 30 of blackberries.

When a man in Syria has the hydrophobia they keep him in a dark room awhile and then drown him. The cure is very effectual; but it might be simplified by drowning him before placing him in a dark room.

A man in Philadelphia has a postal card with over 4,700 words written upon it, and he expects to write 2,000 words more upon it, making 6,700 in all. It is to be sent to the Centennial Exhibition.

Some fleeces of wool clipped in Jefferson county, Texas, this year, weighed as high as thirty-two pounds eight ounces, twenty-nine, twenty-seven, twenty-five, twenty-three, twenty and eighteen pounds each, and the wool is said to be "fine, almost silky."

It is said that a Dane connected with the observatory at Copenhagen has discovered a mode of sending any number of telegraphic messages over the same wire by the simple method of pitching each message in a different key with the aid of tuning forks.

In the Canary Isles the vine ran out, and that was the end of "good Canary wine." Then they raised cochineal, and now the soil is exhausted for good qualities in that article. So they have tried tobacco, and that will in future be their great crop, and they will apparently produce an article finer than ever before known.

Professor Saxe announces that by far the best method for preserving eggs for an indefinite length of time consists in coating them with paraffine, of which one pound will answer for 1,500 eggs. After being thus treated they do not experience any loss in weight, and will remain unchanged several months. It is essential, however, that the eggs be perfectly fresh, as, should decomposition have commenced, the operation will not prevent its continuance.

Moody and Sankey are wanted at Ticonderoga, where the farmers have converted their church into a cheese factory and their race course into a cow pasture.

The heirs of Stephen Girard continue to watch the Girard College, in a hope of detecting some violation of the provisions of his will so as to obtain the property.

A calculation has been made of the number of persons the great cathedrals of the European Continent will hold. St. Peter's, at Rome, holds 54,000 people; the Milan Cathedral holds 37,000; St. Paul's at Rome, holds 25,000; St. Sophia, at Constantinople, holds 28,000; Notre Dame, at Paris, holds 21,000; the cathedral at Pisa holds 18,000, at St. Marco, at Venice, holds 7,000.

Judge GILBERT, of the Supreme Court of Brooklyn rendered a decision in a civil rights case wherein Wm. F. Johnson, a colored man, sought to compel a principal of a public school to admit his son there to, instead of sending him to a school provided for colored children. The court held that the common schools are a public charity; that the benefits conferred by them are a free gift from the State, and, like every other, the State may prescribe in what manner and on what terms and conditions the gift may be enjoyed. In conclusion Judge Gilbert says that the statute, by guaranteeing equal privileges, does not confer the right to enjoy them in common with any class of persons and in any particular school, and that nothing has been shown from which can be inferred that the relator has been deprived of an equality of privileges to which he is entitled. The motion for a mandamus was denied.

One hundred and sixty thousand dollars or more of property was destroyed, one life was lost, and several persons were seriously wounded at Newark, Wednesday evening, as a result of the combustible character of celluloid, a comparatively new article of commerce, which is but little known to the general public. It is composed principally, if not entirely, of gun-cotton and camphor, subjected to a hard pressure and thoroughly dried, and forms a hard elastic substance, susceptible of high polish. It is said to be coming into general use, and the New York World warns the public of danger. Many of the underwriters refused to assume risks on the Newark manufactory.

The latest from the Bank of California is that it is likely to resume on Saturday next.

The society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals put forth the following rules for the treatment of balky horses:

1. Pat the horse upon the neck; examine the harness carefully, first on one side then on the other speaking encouragingly while doing so; then jump into the wagon and give the word go; generally he will obey.
2. A teamster in Maine says he can start the worst balky horse by taking him out of the shafts and making him go round in a circle till he is giddy. If the first dance of the sort does not cure him, a second will.

3. To cure a balky horse, simply place your hand over the horse's nose, and shut off his wind until he wants to go.

4. The brain of a horse seems to entertain but one idea at a time; therefore whipping only confirms his stubborn resolve. If you can, by any means give him a new subject to think of, you will generally have no trouble in starting him. A simple remedy is to take a couple of turns of stout twine around the foreleg just below the knee, tight enough for the horse to feel, and tie in a bow-knot. At the first check he will probably go dancing off, and, after going a short distance you can get out and remove the string to prevent injury to the tendon, in your further drive.

Typhoid from Roof Tanks.

A San Francisco paper has the following:

A gentleman of this city was recently prostrated by typhoid fever, caused, as investigation by his physician proved, by putrid water from the tank on the roof of his house. A heavy deposit of the green, vegetable slime which so rapidly accumulates in all of these tanks, was found in this case. The gentleman's doctor informed him that he had previously attended several cases of typhoid fever produced in the same way. Doctors have several times warned householders of the danger to health from vegetable putrescence in water tanks. These tanks are frequently not cleaned out for years, and found to be lined on the sides and covered on the top with a heavy coating of green scum, which is nearly as poisonous and injurious to the quality of the water as the discharge into it of the leakage from a water closet would be. All of these tanks should be cleaned out monthly or quarterly. A few pounds of clean charcoal, in a net bag, left in them would tend to check vegetable decomposition.

SPECIAL TICKETS—The Central Pacific Railroad Company authorize W. H. Welch, their agent here, to sell special tickets at reduced rates, from Winnemucca to Reno and return, on account of the State Fair. The tickets are good for all trains arriving at Reno from the 3d to the 9th of October inclusive, and are good for return trip until after October 11th. Tickets for round trip will be sold for $17. The regular rates to Reno and back are $25.50, or $12.75 each way. Many persons will undoubtedly avail themselves of this reduction to visit the Fair, and probably go to Carson and Virginia—Winnemucca Steer State.
